who hear me: certainly not, if it furnishes motives for encouragement or hopes to stimulate to exertion. It is fifty years and more since I crossed the mountains on foot, a young adventurer, seeking that land of promise, which has been to me, as to many others, a land of performance. I had many difficulties to contend with, many obstacles to encounter, and many privations, in peace and in war, to endure; and I have probably undergone as large a share of fatigue and exposure, in the early part of my life, as often falls the to lot of our countrymen. But thanks to the nature of our institutions, to their glorious equality, and thanks, above all, to the favor of my countrymen, I have had a measure of political prosperity far beyond what I merited or even dared to anticipate. The youthful emigrant now in the decline of life, communicating to his youthful hearers the result of his experience, that they may go and do likewise-in all but the errors he committed has been borne onward by his generous fellow-citizens to the high posts of the nation, and has represented his country at the court of kings. And he has returned with the conviction, as abiding as his life, that the sun never shone upon as happy a region as this confederation embraces; nor one where human freedom meets less opposition, or the New York, Sept. 2d, 1853.—I have analyzed a there are such powerful motives for exertion human intellect less restraint; nor where or such distinctions for its reward .- Hon. Lewis Cass.

> THE PROMPT CLERK .- I once knew a young man, said an eminent preacher, who was commencing life as a clerk. One day his employer said to him, 'Now, to-morrow that cargo of cotton must be got out and weighed, and we must have a regular account of it.' He was a young man of energy. This was the first time he had been intrusted to superintend the execution of this work: he made his arrangements over-nights, spoke to the men about their carts and horses, and resolving to begin very early in the morning, instructed all the laborers to be there at half past four o'clock, So they set to work, and the thing was done; and about ten o'clock in the day, his employer came in, and seeing him seated in the counting-house, looked very blank, supposing that his commands had not been executed. "I thought," said he, "you were requested to get out that cargo of cotton this morning,"

"It is all done," replied the young clerk,

"and here is the account of it." He never looked behind him from that moment-never! His character was fixed, confidence was established. He was found to Star of December 3, 1859:

NEW ARRANGEMENT.

Alexandria at 3, P. M.

The favorite steamer COLUMBIA, Capt. James Harper, has recently been put in complete order, having had a lded to her former accommodations a sparious saloon and fourteen comfortable staterooms with antica new hedding and other furniture, and will until the 22d September next, leave Baltimore EVERY SATURDAY AFTERNOON, at six instead of four o'clock-thus affording passengers and shippers two hours more in Baltimore, and arriving at Point Lookout and Kinsale at more convexient hours in the morning. Returning, the Columbia will leave Riley's wharf, Washsix, and Alexandria at seven o'clock, calling at all the usual stopping places, going and returning. o land and receive passengers and freight.

Since the COLUMBIA has been enlarged, it rely happens that she cannot take considerable additions to her usual freight. Shippers thereore having large lots of guano, pig iron, and otherfreight, can have them carried by special agreement, on terms mutually advantageous, on application to the following agents.
